Korean Envoy Declares Nigeria Africa's Future At UniPort Lecture

By Obinna Nwodim

Despite the current socio-economic and political challenges bedeviling the country, Nigeria still remains the future and worthy role model for the rest of Africa. The country would require the combined effort of all citizens and valued assistance from foreign partners to unleash its huge potentials on the global stage. This was the submission of the Ambassador of the Republic of Korea to Nigeria, His Excellency, Kyu Noh Duk, at a well-attended Public Lecture and Interactive Session with senior academics and students of the University of Port Harcourt at the Ebitimi Banigo Auditorium, last Tuesday.

Ambassador Duk, whose hour-long PowerPoint presentation was entitled: Korea/Nigeria Relationship at 35, said that his belief on the future of Nigeria influenced his choice to serve his country here for the second time, pointing out that the rest of Africa had so much to learn from Nigeria on many fronts. "If Nigeria succeeds, it means that Africa as a continent would succeed and it is, therefore, important to ensure that students are given priority to prepare them for their future role as leaders with the right kind of focus." Ambassador Duk said that "as the future of Africa, University students in Nigeria have to be properly equipped with the right skills that would prepare them to square up to the challenges of nation-building."

The Envoy gave a historical background of the Republic of Korea and highlighted the steps taken by his country to attain her
As Konya Hands Over Graduate School Today

On March 19, 2011 when Professor Roseline Konya of the Department of Animal and Environmental Biology assumed office as Dean of the School of Graduate Studies (SGS), she unfolded big plans to transform the School in a two-page interview published in the Unique UniPort magazine. Correspondent, OTIKOR SAMUEL, who closely monitored her tenure filed in this exit report.

to the growth of the School, Konya also initiated the idea of publishing widely-commended Annual Reports for record purposes.

Newly-admitted students were given direction on how to proceed with their studies as students in the University through annual orientation exercises and public lectures, in addition to regular interactive sessions with students and their leaders. At the Faculty level, efforts were made to refurbish with state-of-the-art furniture and in-focus facilities to enable graduate students have an enabling environment to engage in research.

Professor Konya navigated her way as students in the University through annual orientation exercises and public lectures, in addition to regular interactive sessions with students and their leaders. At the Faculty level, efforts were made to refurbish with state-of-the-art furniture and in-focus facilities to enable graduate students have an enabling environment to engage in research.

Professor Konya did not accomplish the magic feat by herself; her team which included: Professors Martin Ifeacho, Gregory Anwari, Chinedu Ezirim, Adewale Dosunmu, Graduate Studies Officer, Dr. Agatha Ataga, Chief Accountant, Mr. Onyechel Alali, Admissions Officer, Mrs Helen Mmecha and other subordinate staff who shared in the vision applauded. "I wish to thank the former Vice-Chancellor, Professor Joseph Ajemba for appointing me and my colleagues to various positions. It is an experience which has further widened our individual academic and public service experiences. We also wish to thank our colleagues for the support given us in the line of duty. Postgraduate students who cooperated with us at all times are not left out. We did not have any unfortunate incident in the College, as God guided and protected us throughout our tour of duty and to Him alone be glory and honour." she concluded.

Prof Konya

Her plan to internationalize linkages with other institutions yielded fruit as activities on the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with the University of Birmingham paved way for a Doctoral Candidate in the University, Rachael Akpior to proceed on an exchange programme to Birmingham on a Federal Government scholarship.

To boost the morale of staff for more productivity, the Konya-led School of Graduate Studies has established a Weapon Programme (WiP) to provide all students with a weapon of learning, a working tool to enhance their performance.

To ensure that students engaged in research activities, the Management of the College issued a Circular to all students in the University. As a result, the College has issued a new policy for students engaged in research activities.

Players from within and outside the country have delivered lectures in the College, deployed the Turbin software and other measures to ensure that graduate students engage in original research that is devoid of plagiarism and copyright violation.

"I am very concerned about the originality of research titles and their relevance to national development," she told our Correspondent. No wonder the three dissertations from the University authored by Drs. Adaku Nwuzo, Augustine Nwanyanwu and Chionwa Chikere, in the Arts, Social and Biological Sciences in a keenly contested competition.
86 Doctors, 7 Dentists Take Physicians' Oath

Administering the Physicians' Oath on the new Doctors, Registrar of the Council, Dr Abdullaminu Ibrahim, administered them to always uphold the time-tested medical ethics in their professional practice, which he said were universal and applied to every entrant into the noble calling.

"Council is indeed proud to be associated with the successes recorded in the College, especially in ensuring that the standard of training of Medical and Dental graduates conforms to the minimum standard set by the Council. It is very important at this early stage to remind the Medical and Dental graduates of what medical ethics entails, so that they would be well informed and properly guided before taking the Physicians' Oath and proceeding to practice.

"As a regulatory body, we want to ensure proper training and conduct of new entrants into the profession," he told them, warning against the breach of professional code that could lead to litigation and revocation of operational license.

"You must place the welfare of your patients above other pecuniary interests if you hope to excel in the profession. We would expect you to keep abreast of current trends, duties and privileges in the profession and be ready to relate to other professions, the media and society. You must practice according to your specified registration status. Do not allow the acquisition of academic qualifications at the University of Port Harcourt for training world class Doctors as a leading medical school in the country," Dr. Ibrahim told the gathering.

The Registrar, who was represented by the Assistant Registrar and Head of Registration, Dr. Victor Gbenro, warned the new Doctors against negligence and malpractice that could lead to adverse consequences.

In his welcome address, Vice-Chancellor, Professor Nduwa Lale, said the main purpose of the gathering was to induct successful graduands, who have met the stringent conditions specified by the Senate of the University for admission into the profession that thrives on high ethical standards. "The ceremony offers us a rare opportunity to apprise the progress made so far in implementing the policies of the University in medical education," he said, urging the new Doctors to be good ambassadors of the University.

The Vice-Chancellor, who was represented by the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Administration), Professor Anthony Ibe, charged the Inductees "to strive towards the ideals of diligence and excellence in service to humanity; ensuring that the best professional practices are maintained at all times in the line of duty. That way, you would have justified the huge resources expended on you by the University and your parents as you prepare to prove your skills to the world." Professor Lale said, congratulating the parents of the new Inductees for supporting them during their stay in the Medical School.

Administering the new Doctors, Chief Medical Director of the University of Port Harcourt Teaching Hospital (UPTH), Professor Aaron Ojule, congratulated and welcomed them into the noble profession. "As Doctors, your patients must remain your foremost consideration in all your practice. Medicine is not just a profession or vocation; it is a calling which is by natural selection. It is service to humanity and if you are not prepared to serve humanity, then you have no business being in the profession. Again, another area where we are fast losing track is in respect for our elders and teachers," he lamented, stressing, however, that despite the daunting challenges, the University and Hospital have fulfilled their statutory mandate of training quality manpower for the health sector. "I also commend the graduating class for building high walkways at the University of Port Harcourt Teaching Hospital," he added.

Delivering her address, Provost of the College of Health Sciences, Professor Christie Mute, commended Management of the University and the Teaching Hospital for providing an enabling environment for the training of Doctors by the College. She congratulated parents and guardians for their efforts in ensuring that their children succeeded in their medical training. "I feel proud that you are my first set of graduands. I have scolded you when you misbehaved; I have also pulled you close, guided and prayed for you. I stood rejoicing when I signed and released your results and your screams of joy rent the air around the College, but I also wept for those who did not find their numbers on the pass list. I present you to the world with confidence that you have been well-trained."

In his contribution, Acting Vice-Chancellor, Rivers State University of Science and Technology, Nkpula and MEdical Elder for the 37th Induction, Professor Blessing Didia, congratulated the Inductees for their patience and hard work during their medical training in the University. He urged them to always remain respectful and be conversant with the ethics of the profession. He commended his colleagues for their perseverance in the training of the new Doctors. "In this University, medical training has grown, while the College has remained the eye of the University and we will continue to move forward until we are number one in Africa. It is time for us to have our College building so that we can compete with other medical schools," Professor Didia said.

In their separate speeches, the Valedictorian for the MBBS, Dr. Goodness Okoye and her counterpart in the BDS programme, Dr. Adebowale Bello, expressed satisfaction with the quality of training they received from the College, promising that they would represent the University as thorough-going professionals wherever they may be.

"We learnt that our teachers' discipline was ultimately for our own good and all the stress we were made to go through was to mould our character and build tenacity for the challenges ahead of the class of 2014/2015, THE BEACON, the name which stands for fires lit at well known locations on hills or high places" Dr. Okoye said, charging their colleagues not to forget that the society would see them as honourable and valuable.

Other highlights of the event were the commissioning of a walkway built by the graduating class at the UPTH and presentation of the Port Harcourt Medical Journal.

Omeogu, Leadership Guru Grills

UniPort Students On Wealth Creation

By Obinina Nwudim

revolutionary, theoretical and experimental, Omeogu described learning as a process of increasing capacity to take successful action that would enable the individual create desired outcomes in professional and personal life, adding that the only way to prove that learning has taken place was the exhibition of improved behaviour that can result in developing team spirit and self-motivation.

Mr. Omeogu stated that the greatest obstacle to success was no longer ignorance, but illusion of knowledge, highlighting a number of levels which he said were necessary for the attainment of competence in the competitive business environment of today. He identified entrepreneurship as committing an individual's virtue into wealth, explaining that an entrepreneur was someone who determined the financial value of his virtue. Adding, Director of the Claude Ake School of Government, Professor Eme Ejekwe, expressed gratitude to Mr. Omeogu for what he described as the insightful exposure of the students to a new level of thinking, adding that the presentation was such an invaluable exercise that could take the students to the pinnacle of their future career choices.
Inductees, Parents Speak On Medical Training

Newly-Inducted Medical Doctors and Dental Surgeons, including their parents, spoke to UniPort Weekly Correspondent, ETHEL TIMI-JOHNSON, on the sidelines of the 37th Induction Ceremony of the College of Health Sciences which took place last Monday:

DR. GOODNESS OKOYE
Best Graduating Student (BACHELOR OF MEDICINE, BACHELOR OF SURGERY)
"I feel accomplished, humbled and very grateful to God and everyone who contributed to our success. I believe I got the best training because my teachers gave their very best. They were willing to give us their best and we promise to always make them proud." Dr. Okoye also emerged as Best Graduating Student in Anatomy, Pathology and Internal Medicine.

DR. ADEBOWALE BELLO, Best Graduating Student (BACHELOR OF DENTAL SURGERY)
"I feel awesome being inducted into the Medical and Dental Council of Nigeria (MDCN). The joy will never cease as I have a lot of reasons to celebrate after all the struggle to scale through the hurdle of becoming a Dental Surgeon. On a scale of 10, I will rate the training I received here as seven per cent. The highlight of my training was the clinical postings which exposed me to the practical aspects of dental education." Dr. Bello also emerged as Best Graduating Student in Prosthodontics, Restorative Dentistry and Preventive Dentistry.

DR. ENVINNAYA U. AKEGBU, GRADUAND
"I feel excited and honoured having finally graduated as a Dentist. I feel so much fulfilled and happy. I will rate my training high, but there is need for improvement of available facilities to deepen the training programme. The highpoint of my stay in the University was successfully completing my studies. At one point, I was the President and Public Relations Officer of the Port Harcourt University Dental Students' Association (PUDSA), Vice-President and Assistant Secretary General of the Nigerian Association of Dental Students. Involvement in these activities opened my eyes to many more things that I did not originally anticipate as a student in this University."

DR. MICHELLE EDJE, GRADUAND
"I am happy to be inducted as a full-fledged Doctor today and I'm so glad it came to a beautiful climax. I wish to thank my parents and siblings for being so supportive. I would rate my training as 80 per cent." Dr. Edje is the Best Graduating Student in Child Health, Science of Dental Material and Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery.

PROFESSOR EMENIKE WAMI, PARENT
NATIONAL PRESIDENT OF THE NIGERIAN SOCIETY OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS
It is a thing of joy for parents to see their children graduating after the stress and sleepless nights. The students have done the University and their parents proud and we will all join them to celebrate their tenacity of purpose. I am very happy that this phase of my daughter's training has finally come to an end. Another chapter has begun in her professional career. We wish all the graduating Doctors the best in life.

ENGINEER AND MRS. WILLIAMS, PARENTS
"We feel great to be alive to witness today. It is our happiest day. The Induction Ceremony was well organized. We are grateful to God. UniPort is truly unique and we can attest to the high quality training our son received from the Medical School here. It is our hope that our children who were sworn-in today would go out to the world and prove themselves worthy of the fanfare that we witnessed here today."

SIRAUSTIN ANUSIEM, PARENT
"Today is a joyful day in my life. I thank God for keeping me alive to see my daughter being inducted as a Medical Doctor. I owe appreciation to the Lecturers and the University Management for leading them to the right point of their professional career. I pray they continue to keep the flag flying to the glory of God and advancement of the Medical profession."

V-C Appoints Worlu UIL MD

By Williams Wodi

Following his successful tenure as pioneer Manager of the then Choba/UniPort Community Bank, which later transformed into the U&C Microfinance Bank, Dr. Paul Worlu of the Department of Educational Management and Planning has been appointed Acting Managing Director of the University of Port Harcourt Investments Limited (UIL). He takes over from Mr. Isaiah Enos, who has been sent on 'Compulsory Leave' from his duty post, following what the administration described as lapses in the management structure of the company on his watch. He will remain on Leave until the Committee set up to investigate the activities of the company submits its report to the Vice-Chancellor.

A statement personally signed by the Vice-Chancellor, Professor Ndozla Lale, directed Dr. Worlu to take over the day-to-day running of the company till further notice, congratulating him on his new appointment and hoping that he would turn around the dwindling fortunes of UIL.

It would be recalled that Dr. Worlu's glittering record of service took him to the Federal University of Technology, Otuoke in Bayelsa State, on the request of the National Universities Commission. Once at Otuoke, he pioneered a thriving Audit Department, including training a highly motivated crop of new staff that took over from him.

On his return to the University in September, 2013, Management of the University of Port Harcourt wrote him a commendation letter for excellently discharging his duty schedule without compromising his integrity.

Dr. Worlu joined the services of the University of Port Harcourt as a Senior Clerical Officer in July, 1981 and rose through the ranks in the Audit Unit, before obtaining the Doctor of Philosophy degree in 2010. He joined the academia in 2011 with an established track record of performance in and outside the classroom.
Parents, Guardian Speak On UniPort Parents' Forum

Parents who were bombard with text messages, letters, banners, newspaper and radio announcements by way of invitation, convened on the University of Port Harcourt on Wednesday, September 16, 2015. Most of them had assumed that they were being 'summoned' to be told of one infringement or the other committed by their children, and were, thus, circumspect as they arrived for the meeting. Some first sought out their wards and subjected them to rigorous interrogations before moving to the venue of the meeting. Just to be sure that nothing had gone amiss. Once the Vice-Chancellor, Professor Ndoaka Lala gave his well-received State of the University Address, the parents heaved a sigh of relief and regained their composure. You can never be sure of what young people are capable of doing outside the prying eyes of their parents these days. They call it a 'free world'. Parents were filled with eager anticipation as the highly animated Forum progressed at the expansive Ebitimi Banigo Auditorium. The Forum commenced at 12.00 noon as scheduled with no room for the notorious 'African Time.' Attendance was more that heavy, while the weather initially in agreement with the landmark event. A later downpour failed to dampen the spirit of all stakeholders. Elder Statesman, renowned Journalist and Writer, Lindsey Barrett, who was appointed a Special Adviser to the Interim Executive of the University of Port Harcourt Parents' Forum, described the event as very unique and long overdue. "I taught at the Universities of Ibadan and Lagos; and I don’t remember witnessing such a Forum like the one being convened by the authorities of University of Port Harcourt today with such massive attendance. So, I congratulate the authorities highly initiative for platform devote Univer

Stakeholders Meet On PTDF Chair

By Otokor Samuel

Stakeholders under the auspices of the Endowment Management Committee for the Petroleum Technology Development Fund (PTDF) Chair in Petroleum Engineering met on Friday, September 11, 2015, to review the activities of the Chair with a view to mapping out new strategies to actualize its mandate. Speaking during the quarterly meeting, Vice-Chancellor, Professor Ndoaka Lala, who was represented by Professor Ben Ndukwa, charged the Committee members to foster an inter-disciplinary research strategy and build more capacity around the Chair in line with the goal for endowing it by the PTDF. The Vice-Chancellor, who assured PTDF that the University would judiciously utilize the fund allocated to the Chair, commended other members of the Committee for their interest in helping to realize the objectives of the fund. In his presentation, Chair Occupant, Professor Dulu Nnorhaba, listed the objectives of the Chair to include: strengthening research collaborations with the industry and government, encouraging and developing interdisciplinary teaching and research in gas technology, as well as exploring new frontiers in gas development in the country. "The responsibilities of the Endowment Management Committee are to produce an annual budget for maintaining the Chair, receive and manage all funds remitted by PTDF (Records and Accounts of funds), meet not less than four times a year for proper administration of the Chair, provide PTDF a quarterly Research Report on Chair (Gas Research Group) and provide proper custody of all capital equipment," Professor Appah disclosed, promising his commitment to the delivery of the objectives of the Chair. Representatives of PTDF, Dr. Neeka Jacob and Kaltume Ahmed, who undertook an inspection of equipment for research, recommended repair and replacement of old ones, stressing the need for a strong and effective succession plan to ensure smooth transition from one Chair Occupant to other.

MDCN Commends UniPort On Quality Medical Training

By Obinna Nwosu

he Medical and Dental Council of Nigeria (MDCN) has showered praises on authorities of the University for recording what the Council described as “significant improvements in infrastructural development aimed at enhancing the training of quality medical doctors in the College of Health Sciences.” The Council also commended Management of the University for sustaining its leadership position in medical education in the country since the inception of the College of Health Sciences.

The commendation was contained in the Exit Report presented to the administration by a member of the facility evaluation team, Professor Bernard Jibwum. The report was presented at the Vice-Chancellor's Committee Room, last Tuesday. Professor Jibwum said that after thorough inspection of available facilities, his team was convinced that there was enough infrastructure on ground to sustain the request for improved admission quota from the University.

“We saw, concrete evidence of infrastructural development in the places visited. The University of Port Harcourt Teaching Hospital has improved in a number of ways, which is a far cry from what we saw during our last visit there. We congratulate the authorities on the observed improvements and we also identified other areas that would require improvements for the delivery of quality medical education in the College of Health Sciences,” Professor Jibwum disclosed.

Earlier at a courtesy call on arrival in the University for the exercise, the Registrar of the Council, Dr. Abdulmuminu Ibrahim, who was represented by the Head of Medical Education, Dr. Naemeka Nwakanna, had praised authorities of the University for supporting the College of Health Sciences in its bid to raise quality medical personnel for the country’s healthcare sector.

The Registrar, who described MDCN as the apex regulatory body for the practice of Medicine, Dentistry and Alternative Medical in Nigeria, disclosed that the team was in the University to evaluate the state of infrastructure before Council would consider the University’s request to admit more students into the Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery programme.

According to him, the Council does not stop any Medical School from increased student subscription, but added that Council’s duty was to encourage such institutions to do so in line with global best practices, adding that such stringent regulations were intended to improve the quality of medical training in the country and safeguard the health of the citizens. “We have ensured that Nigerian doctors are properly trained to compete with their counterparts in other parts of the world. We make sure that we maintain the established tradition of the medical profession in terms of quality, ethical conduct and service to humanity by new entrants into the noble profession. We try in the midst of all odds to ensure a semblance of minimum standards in a profession that deals directly with human life.”

Receiving the delegation, the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Administration), Professor Anthony Ibe, who represented the Vice-Chancellor, Professor Ndowa

Lale, expressed gratitude to MDCN for the facility visit to the University, pledging the total commitment of Management to quality medical training in line with global best practices. He told the team that “the request for improved admission quota was borne out of the desire of the University to contribute to efforts aimed at bridging the lopsided ratio of medical doctors to the populace as stipulated by the World Health Organization (WHO).” Professor Ibe added that “the authorities of the University were doing everything within their powers to convince MDCN of the installed capacity of the College of Health Sciences to meet the stringent requirements that would qualify it to admit more students.”

In her remarks, Provost of the College, Professor Christie Mato, who thanked the authorities for supporting quality medical training in the University, expressed hope that the College was on the right track to achieving the desired result. Lamenting the poor ratio of doctors to patients in Nigeria, the Provost urged the regulatory body to answer the prayer of the College by approving enhanced admission quota for the medical programme.

Also present at the event was another member of the delegation, Professor Eluatingwazza Agbaka from the Obafemi Awolowo University.
STADU To Commence Staff Training Oct 6

By Ethel Timi-Johnson

A way of consolidating on Management's resolve to enhance service delivery to the University's growing stakeholders, the Registrar, Mrs Matilda Nnodim, through the Staff Training and Development Unit (STADU), has proposed a three-day training programme for various categories of staff.

The training programme which is expected to commence on Tuesday, October 6, 2015, at the Basic Studies Unit, University Park, would target Cleaners and Messengers employed from 2010 to 2015. Also, Clerical Officers, Administrative Assistants and Officers and Assistant Registrars employed during the same period would be trained on Wednesday 7th and Thursday 8th October, respectively.

A letter made available to UniPort Weekly from the STADU Unit and signed by the Staff Training Officer, Mr. Fidelis Ikeyiha-ahaka, indicated that the training programme will be mandatory for all affected staff.

“Participants are expected to write an appraisal test that would be used to determine their next promotion exercise,” the letter read in part, adding that the training programme is in compliance with the vision of the new Vice-Chancellor.

CITE Announces Sale Of Form

By Mercy Adeniji

The Centre for Information and Telecommunication Engineering (CITE), has announced sale of form for the Master of Science programme for the 2015/16 session.

A letter signed by the Registrar, Mrs. Matilda Nnodim and made available to UniPort Weekly, disclosed that the CITE is designed to be a specialized Information and Communication Centre (ICT) poised to bridging the university-industry gap through result-oriented teaching and practical hands-on based training.

Speaking on the uniqueness of the programme, Mrs Nnodim stated that the programme would afford students an opportunity to learn in an enabling environment, following which they would be awarded the Master of Science degree on graduation. “The duration of the programme for full-time students runs for 12 calendar months with intensive training, while the weekend programme is designed to run for a minimum of 100 weekends (Friday afternoons and Saturday full day),” the statement further disclosed.

Mrs. Nnodim noted that a minimum of a Bachelor’s degree with a minimum Cumulative Grade Point Average (CGPA) of 3.50 on a scale of 5.00 in any of the Engineering fields, Computer Science, Mathematics/Statistics, Physics, Physics/Electronics or any other related field would be mandatory conditions for admission, adding that Candidates with a CGPA of 3.00 on a scale of 5.00 with, at least, two years relevant experience would also be considered.

“Application forms are available at the Centre for Information and Telecommunication Engineering (CITE), 2nd Floor, School of Basic Studies Building, University of Port Harcourt,” Online application form can be obtained from the website at www.uniport.edu.ng. The statement directed prospective candidates to forward a non-refundable application fee of fifteen thousand naira (N15,000) in certified bank draft made payable to the Centre for Information and Telecommunication Engineering (CITE).

“Completed application form must be returned to the Director, CITE on or before Wednesday September 20, 2015, while oral interview will be held at 10:00am on Wednesday, October 7, 2015. 2015/2016 session begins on December 7, 2015. For enquires, candidates are to call +234(0)8037088490, 08175636034. Email: cite@uniport.edu.ng”, the statement added.
CGS 4th ORIENTATION EXERCISE
